

East Tennessee State University Goes from Saying “No” to ILL Requests to Saying “Yes” with Get It Now

As an interlibrary loan (ILL) librarian at East Tennessee State University (ETSU), Alison DePollo takes great pride in helping faculty and students obtain the journal articles they need, but don't have subscriptions to. But, like many ILL librarians facing constraints, she has often had to cancel requests for articles when the cost, time or effort to obtain them was too great. As a result, she was intrigued when she heard about an innovative article delivery service while attending an academic conference. Copyright Clearance Center's Get It Now service, which is tightly integrated into an institution's search and ILL workflows, complements ILL services by providing library patrons with the immediate fulfillment of full-text articles from unsubscribed journals—24 hours a day, seven days a week.

On returning from the conference, DePollo researched Get It Now and was impressed with what she learned about the cost-effective, easy-to-use application that could quickly be integrated into ETSU's ILL platform. DePollo also found the service appealing because Get It Now ensures that content is available to patrons when they need it, saving libraries time and money and improving patron satisfaction.

DePollo describes the implementation process as “really easy” and says that its tight integration with ILLiad, ETSU's ILL platform, is “fantastic.” Placing an order for an article through Get It Now is just like placing an order with any other supplier, and using it keeps the order in the same workflow. The service can be configured in two ways: while ETSU opted to deploy the librarian-mediated version, the service is also offered as an unmediated OpenURL Link resolver-based version.

“I highly recommend Get It Now to other academic institutions. The service saves you time, reduces cost, and you have total control over how you use it.”

Since adopting Get It Now in July 2012, DePollo has been impressed with the cost savings the service delivers. Without Get It Now, DePollo determined that 67% of patron requests would have been cancelled between July 2012 and March 2013. ETSU subsidizes up to $50 per article for faculty and up to $35 for graduate students; orders for articles that exceed those thresholds are cancelled. Article fees through Get It Now are often below those thresholds.

DePollo also saves time and effort with Get It Now. Patrons receive their articles immediately, and DePollo no longer has to do any copyright fee processing because, with the service, copies of articles are purchased and not borrowed. Furthermore, Get It Now delivers high-quality, full-text color PDFs directly to patrons via ETSU's electronic article delivery service, Odyssey.

“I highly recommend Get It Now to other academic institutions,” concluded DePollo. “The service saves you time and reduces cost, and you have total control over how you use it.”
